

more abrupt changes as enormous stores of methane hydrate, a gas with several times the heat retention capacity of carbon dioxide, is released from the ocean floor and expanses of permafrost? These gases are released as the natural mechanisms keeping them sequestered are broken down by warming. Permafrost melts. Ocean temperature and acidity rise. The historical record contains strong evidence that abrupt climate change has corresponded with a single release of vast stores of methane hydrate.

This uncertainty is real. It stands in stark contrast to the alleged uncertainties that have been manufactured by those who stand to profit by perpetuating the status quo as long as possible.

To resolve and manage the real uncertainty, we must have the best scientific information possible at our fingertips in order to weigh risks and benefits of all available policy responses. That is only one of the reasons that the casualness with which this Administration sends unqualified political appointees to edit scientific findings is so pernicious. It is also destructive because accurate information is the bedrock of any democratic society. Without it, citizens cannot hold their leaders accountable for their actions, or in this case, inactions.

Sadly, such distortion of the truth has a proven track record of effectiveness. Indeed an entire industry has been created to manufacture scientific doubt where there is none. It is a technique that was mainstreamed by the tobacco industry and refined by others who stand to profit from scientific obfuscation like the chemical industry and the pharmaceutical industry. In fact, an entire industry that specializes in creating scientific uncertainty has taken root. It consists of PR agencies, pseudo scientific consultants and well paid think tanks. The strategy not only works, but is profitable.

Making matters worse, today we will see evidence that the taxpayers have been subsidizing the distortion of the findings of world class scientists on the topic. At best, it is corporate welfare. At worst, it undermines democracy and puts the delicate ecosystems on which we all intimately depend, at risk. My hope is that this hearing marks the beginning of the end of this practice.

TRIBUTE TO HRANT DINK

HON. JOE BACA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 2007

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, on January 19, 2007, Hrant Dink, a distinguished Armenian journalist, was shot dead outside the offices of his newspaper Agos in Istanbul, Turkey. A progressive voice of reason and hope for Armenians living in Turkey and around the world, Hrant Dink fought tirelessly to engage the Turkish community in open discussion of the many injustices Armenians have experienced in the past and present including the Genocide of 1915 and current human rights violations.

Hrant Dink struggled daily with the difficulties of disclosing the Armenian Genocide to the public in Turkey, yet he continued to make the difficult his lifelong passion. In his weekly columns, Dink often spoke of the complexities he felt being an Armenian who happened to be a citizen of Turkey—a country that fails to acknowledge that the Armenian Genocide occurred. As a result, Dink was charged and convicted of insulting Turkey's identity. In October 2005, after writing about the Armenian Genocide, he was given a 6-month suspended sentence.

Hrant Dink was killed because he was a courageous and outspoken journalist and continued to write his columns in hopes of educating and informing the people of Turkey. As Turkey continues to evolve as a modern secular state, it must understand that democracy requires more than free elections; freedom of the press is essential.

I express my condolences to the family, and colleagues of Hrant Dink. He was a courageous, committed columnist, and a mentor and friend to many. He will be remembered and missed.

HONORING THE MILITARY SERVICE OF STAFF SERGEANT EVERETT PATTON

HON. RON LEWIS

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 31, 2007

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay public tribute to Army Staff Sergeant Everett Patton for his courageous service to our country during his recent deployment in Iraq. Staff Sergeant Patton, a resident of Owensboro, Kentucky, is currently recovering from severe burns at the Brooke Medical Center in Fort Sam Houston, Texas following an IED attack.

Staff Sergeant Patton began his military career in the United States Marine Corps. After a brief tenure working in civilian construction, Mr. Patton and his wife Christy enlisted in the Army in January 1999. He was first assigned as a Specialist in the heavy construction equipment operator field with C Company 5th Engineer Battalion at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

Staff Sergeant Patton reenlisted in 2002 and was placed in the 562nd Engineer Company in Alaska as squad leader. He was deployed to Operation Iraqi Freedom in July 2005 for his first six-month tour as part of the 172nd Stryker Brigade. He returned to Iraq for a second tour in 2006.

While operating a bulldozer, Staff Sergeant Patton struck an IED that exploded and quickly engulfed his vehicle in flames. Gratefully, he survived the explosion but suffered severe burns over almost 70% of his body.

Staff Sergeant Patton is making a remarkable recovery in the burn unit at Brooke Medical Center in Fort Sam Houston, Texas. On January 29th, he was honored with the Purple Heart Award. He remains in high spirits with the love and support of his wife and five children.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to Staff Sergeant Patton for selflessly standing in harm's way to protect our freedom and way of life. His courage and sacrifice represent the very best of what it means to be a United States soldier and citizen.

It is my great privilege to recognize Staff Sergeant Everett Patton today, before the entire U.S. House of Representatives, for his generous service and unflinching duty to our great country. My colleagues and I wish him a quick return to good health.
